Preschool Children's Guide

This booklet belongs to:

This is a special book just for you, now that you have come to live with your new family.

We want to tell you about Adopters for Adoption, we call them AfA because it's easier to say!

Sometimes you might feel sad or worried and if you do, that's OK. You can talk to your new parents, or if you like, you can talk to your social worker who visits you. They are there to listen to you and to help you feel safe and happy.

If you have any questions about your new family or the family you used to live with, they will help you to find out the answers.

You can ask your parents to let you speak to AfA by ringing:

0800 5877 791

If you are not happy with AfA for any reason then you can let them know that too.

They like to hear if you have a problem so that they can sort it out quickly for you.

You can also talk to Ofsted or the Children's Commissioner if there's something you're worried about:

We hope that you'll be very happy in your new family.
